

Communications Services Committee

The Committee fulfills its mission by seeking out and modeling the best communication practices; overseeing the general communications with the NACCC; fostering a more communication-conscious culture within the NACCC. They fulfill this by appointing an editorial advisory committee for our national magazine, The Congregationalist. They appoint editors for the Advent and Lenten devotional publications; they appoint a publications committee which oversees the work of the Congregational Press; they recognize our member churches' work in a variety of communication areas including newsletters and web sites.

For more information please contact: Rev. Dawn Carlson

