FROM MY HEART TO YOURS

Dear Friends,

When was the last time you played the violin in a train station? Sometime last year I received a story from a lawyer friend in Greenwich, CT. He often sends me newspaper articles, jokes, tidbits of all sorts and varieties.

This particular email was about an article from the Washington Post (you may remember the article). Subsequently, the story hit national news. A musician entered the metro station in DC and began to play six beautiful Bach pieces on the violin, for 45 minutes on a cold January day. During that time few gave him even a nod. Only one person came over and threw a dollar bill in his open violin case. He counted six people who actually paused for a moment to listen. Among them was a young boy with his mother, who was trying to leave the station, dragging the young boy behind. The boy kept resisting, looking back at the musician transfixed by him and the music.

No one bothered to find out who this person was. He was Joshua Bell, one the world's great violinists. The Post conducted this experiment, and later concluded that there is something to the notion that our culture has lost its sense of wonder.

Do our churches create an atmosphere of wonder? Do we inspire our congregants to "play the violin" in the city and town squares where we live and worship? We do not need an evangelism program to do this. We don't need some elaborate outreach plan. We may not even need words to do this effectively. The only thing we need is a sense that God can do amazing, wonderful, inspirational things with our gifts.

Grace and Peace,
Rev. Dr. Thomas Richard
Executive Secretary

The Annual Minister's Convocation was held at St. Mary's of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, Illinois May 2 – 5. Approximately 35 people attended the retreat for fellowship, spiritual refreshment and relaxation. Rev. Eric Britcher led the group in Bible Study focusing on the pastoral skills that are extolled in Philipians. Rev. Steve Schafer guided the group in a deepening of our fellowship through "clergy games", a creation of Steve's that allows pastors to explore how they handle ministry conundrums. Morning and evening worship services brought to the fore a variety of leadership styles and messages. Free time and evening social time added to sense of connection.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

CAMPAIGN CORNER

Branching Out in Scottsdale

The NACCC team is now preparing to transition the Branching Out campaign at the 2011 Annual Meeting in Scottsdale. At the opening presentation on Saturday afternoon, meeting attendees will learn from Congregational Foundation President Jim Hopkins and NACCC executives how the campaign's conclusion will plant the seeds for the Association's future development efforts.

At 6:00 p.m. on Monday evening, meeting attendees are invited to the Congregational Foundation's Annual Reception. At this special gathering we will thank all our generous donors, and honor our Providence Fund and Richard Fund grant recipients. We will also welcome two recently appointed College Presidents as our special guests: Dr. Steven Corey, who joined Olivet College last December, and Dr. Danny P. Hollingsworth, successor to Dr. W. Ray Cleere who retired from Piedmont College in May after serving as President for 16 years.

Richard Fund Grant Awards

John Calvin Richard, brother of NACCC Executive Secretary Dr. Thomas Richard, was a talented singer, actor and director. After his passing in 2006, the Richard family established a memorial fund within the Congregational Foundation to honor his lifelong love of music and theater. The Richard Fund awards grants of up to $500 to NACCC churches of 200 members or less to help defray costs for a special music or performing arts event in their church.

This year we received a record number of grant applications! Seventeen (17) churches applied, proposing a variety of creative events all worthy of funding. Since the number of requests greatly exceeded the limited amount available for distribution from this fund, our Grant Awards Committee members were faced with very difficult choices. The Foundation's Board of Governors is pleased to announce that grants have been awarded to the following four (4) churches:

Church in the Cove, Beverly, Massachusetts

Grant Award – $200

Songs and Carols Concert, December 10, 2011

This event will benefit the church and its community by encouraging intergenerational relationships.

First Congregational Church, East Bloomfield, New York

Grant Award – $250

10th Annual Choir Invitational, October 2011

This event will benefit churches in the Bloomfield community by reviving an annual program that stopped in 2007.

Forest Avenue Congregational Church, Bangor, Maine

Grant Award – $250

Youth Talent Show, August 20, 2011

This event will help the church raise funds to repair water and roof damage to its sanctuary caused by the severe winter.

Demorest Methodist Congregational Federated Church

Demorest, Georgia

Grant Award – $200

An Evening of Broadway, January 21-22, 2012

This event will benefit a local charity that helps persons in need within the community.

Congratulations to these NACCC churches! We look forward to meeting your delegates in Scottsdale.

PROFILES IN LAY MINISTRY

The Lay Ministry Training Program supports the Congregational value of a learned laity. It provides basic training for people who desire to serve the church more fully, either as a lay minister or as a lay leader. The program assists in the spiritual development of individuals and enhances knowledge in areas of biblical knowledge, theology, worship, Congregational history and polity, mission, and others. Students work with a mentor and proceed at their own pace.

Pauline Chase was admitted to the LMTP in 2007. Pauline was baptized and became a member of the Litchfield Plains Baptist Church, Litchfield Maine, at the age of 11. As a young adult, she attended the Assembly of God Church with her first husband, Rev. Granholm who was a missionary to the deaf of New England. Since 2005 Pauline has held leadership roles in Imani Tabernacle Congregational church. She is actively involved as a Sunday School teacher, office assistant, Vacation Bible school teacher and has served on numerous committees. She has also been a leader in Pioneer Clubs and 4-H.

Pauline is currently employed with Maine-ly Elder Care. She has 4 adult children, one adopted, four granddaughters and has hosted 20 exchange students over the years. She has been widowed twice.

In Pauline's words, "I was inspired to do the lay ministry training program because as a Christian, the Holy Spirit had inspired me in many areas of service, even in taking over for our minister sometimes. One week it had been impressed upon me that's what I should do. The next Sunday the pastor asked if I would like to take the training and responsibility when he was away. A confirmation of the Spirit's guidance. I've learned much since that point and can say God has led me through each step. Through this training I hope to be prepared for any ministry or service God has planned for me. He knows me and the gifts He gave me."

Keep Pauline and the other lay ministry students in your prayers as they continue their studies. The Lay Ministry program is administered by the Center for Congregational Leadership. More information about the program can be found on the Center's web site www.centerforcongregationalleadership.org

I have held many things in my hands, and I have lost them all. But whatever I have placed in God's hands, that I still possess.

A MOMENT IN HISTORY

“Growth or Conquest: Horace Bushnell's Revolution in Christian Education”

Throughout its history, Christian faith has appeared in two distinct varieties. One darker, the other more sunny. One pessimistic, the other optimistic. One highlighting obstacles, the other potentials. John the Baptist on one side, Jesus on the other. The Gospel of Mark contrasted with the Gospel of Luke. Paul versus his enthusiastic opponents. Augustine, the theologian of original sin set against Origen, the theologian of the indwelling image of God. The philosopher William James characterized these strands as the religions of the “Sick Soul” and the “Healthy Mind”.

Need it be said that early Calvinistic Congregationalism came down pretty heavily on the darker side? Self-conscious repentance, renunciation of one's former life, and throwing oneself on Christ's mercy were all required for church membership. Great premium was put on taming one's impulses, avoiding frivolity, and not allowing one's hands to be idle. Seriousness of purpose and severity are the words that come to mind. Pointing this out is not to disparage the original ethos – the Puritan period was one of the most creative in American history.

A blind spot, however, was in the practical and theoretical attitude toward children. Lost little souls, destined for perdition unless converted, constantly in danger of imperiling themselves further, not really among God's elect. Is that all there is to childhood from the perspective of faith? In 1847, Horace Bushnell, a Congregational minister in Detroit, published a revolutionary and controversial little tract, “Christian Nurture”, gradually expanded into a book, outlining a very different perspective on childhood and faith.

Horace Bushnell. Wikipedia.org

Early childhood is not just a faith wasteland or minefield. On the contrary, the early years, which he characterized as “the age of impressions”, are the time when a person's basic, and permanent, attitudes toward life and, by extension, its Creator are formed. Christian parents “should seek to teach a feeling rather than a doctrine; to bathe the child in their own feeling of love to God. . . .” If a child is cared for, loved, nurtured, he/she will become trusting, grateful, full of goodwill. If, on the other hand, a child is neglected, abused, and treated harshly or disrespectfully, he/she will grow up to be anxious, suspicious, filled with the ill-will that was received.

The well-loved child will be filled with the love of God from its birth. Bushnell put most emphasis on the pious mother — her loving nurture has effects even in the womb. But the church also plays a role. First, it is to be a nurturing place itself. A corollary is that it avoid the harsh attitudes and treatment he associated with revivalism: “We have been expecting to thrive too much by conquest, and too little by growth”. Second is that it view the well-loved child as “presumptively” possessing full Christian faith even though he/she is not fully aware of it. Third, that the church work with the family gradually to bring the love of God to conscious awareness. His hope was that by these changes “The school of John the Baptist will be succeeded by the school of Christ, as a dew comes after a fire.”

These views hardly seem revolutionary today, but they were, and a major Congregational contribution to American religious life.
